

From the Woodstock Post.
Some Answers, Not from the Board of Education.

MR. EDITOR:
I see in your paper under date of June 25th, "Some Comments for the Board of Education," by A. T. I am not a member of the Board, and modestly might require me to wait for an answer, still I propose to try my hand at answering some of the questions and giving the outlook of others. I may not take them in order, but will answer and explain as fancy directs. It is a fact (whether it is generally known or not,) that just Eaton's, Walton and French's Arithmetic were placed in the hands of the six prominent teachers, who were asking "What in your judgment is the best work on Arithmetic for our schools?" but "Which of these three would you recommend?" Now Eaton's and Walton's had been before the Board five years before, and rejected. How does that look? When teachers asked, before the legislative committee, "Why only these three were given out for examination?" the answer was that they did not know that others were in competition; as though no book could possibly be worth recommending unless its claims were pushed by its author or publisher, had the answer been, "Because we intend that no book but French's shall have any chance at all," the people would have believed in their integrity, at least, if not in their judgment. Now they have no faith that they possess either." Again a petition containing more than a hundred and fifty signatures was sent to the Board, asking it to make no change in Arithmetic. I don't know whether it came before them, or was kept out of sight. About the Secretary's threatening a New York firm with vengeance, I can't answer, but the Harter's issue a rule slate for French, and Walton, Almsworth & Co., the publishers of the Payson, Dutton & Scribner system of penmanship, do the same thing for Bartholomew, and there is a rivalry between the two, and the P. D. & S. series of writing books has been discarded, and the Spencerian recommended. W. A. & Co. also publish Bartholomew's drawing, books, and Mr. Stetson, the conductor of the Institute at Windsor and in some other counties, is the author of a work on drawing published by James R. Osgood & Co., which with Smith's series by the same firm he recommends to teachers at the Institutes, acting, I suppose, as agent for the publishers, and paid. I also suppose, out of our State treasury by the Secretary, to recommend and peddle his own work. If he is not, then we are Mr. Stetson's enemy, and might get the credit of managing economically for the State if he will let it be known. In regard to the teachers called before the investigating committee, I heard one who was present say, that four, not in full communion with the managing party, were placed under oath, while others were not. "Why were not all served alike?" I don't know. "Were the committee in league with the Board?" I don't know and don't care. The whitewashing was so thin, that I don't believe it produced a panic in the line market at the Capital. Now, Mr. Editor, I have answered some of A. T.'s questions for the Board. I do not know as they would be willing to pay me, even out of the State treasury, for I am a citizen of Vermont, and they employ no body in the State to work for them. If belonged in Maine, or New York, or Pennsylvania, or some other State where French's Arithmetic need somebody to puff and blow for them, they might offer to pay, but as it is, I don't expect it; if, however, they should offer anything through you, you may thank them for me and say that I ask nothing; they are welcome. A. T. intimates that he may ask some more questions, if agreeable to him, and you, and the Board, I'll answer so far as I can.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1873.
As we have worn no disguises in the past, we come with no promise of a new sensation. We shall offer you no cunningly devised fabric to tickle your fancy, nor take a fresh departure in unbeaten paths to relieve the monotony of truth-telling. For nearly fifteen years we have held to the same principles, and we find them all unswayed by the lapse of time.
